

OUR GREEN CONSTRUCTION CREATES A SAFER ENVIRONMENT... FOR YOU AND YOUR FAMILY

Preserving the environment is a priority for us at DKC Sparklean Group. This makes green construction our #1 goal because it creates a safer, healthier environment for you and for us all. Studies have shown that green house gases are being emitted into the atmosphere from the building and construction industry. The emissions are impacting our air, water and natural resource supply.

Green construction practices mean that instead of using toxic chemicals or materials during the building process, companies such as DKC Sparklean Group apply gentler, eco-friendly methods and materials. For example, instead of oversaturating carpet with certain chemicals or dyes, we minimize the compound in order to achieve a great result without harming the environment.

DKC Sparklean Group green construction services include:

- Utilizing renewable resources in the building process
- Green building methods to restore homes that have been damaged by fire, water, wind or vandalism
- Green deconstruction instead of demolition to remove items in an earth-friendly manner
- Using green compounds during cleaning, deodorization and restoration

Customers agree that our green construction approach not only provides numerous benefits for the environment, but their families live a healthier life.

Green construction isn't a way of the future... it's a practice of today. Contact DKC Sparklean Group, a leading green building provider in the Edmonton Metro region.

Green Construction Saves you Time and Money

Although all building companies should provide green construction services, not many do. Eliminating green house gases using green building techniques not only promotes healthier living and a stronger planet, green construction can save you money. At DKC Sparklean Group, we anticipate that insurance companies will request green construction policies and favour specific eco-friendly products. If you've suffered property damage due to fire, water, wind or vandalism, have DKC Sparklean Group re-construct your home using green building materials. Support green construction and make your contribution to the environment today.

DKC Sparklean Group technicians and green building experts are trained and certified (IICRC) in green construction development so you know your home or office transformation will be done right.
